Scoring

The purpose of this assessment is to help you identify areas that require strengthening. The total score intends to track progress. It should not be used as a measure of self-loathing. Irrespective of what your score is, accept where you are on the journey. This is a sign of being kind to yourself. See this as an opportunity for growth rather than self-judgment.

Identifying Areas That Require Strengthening:

After you have completed the scoring on the assessment, identify areas to work on before you embark upon Part Two of the book. You can do this as follows:

- Understand your priority areas by observing scores in the darkest grey columns (between 1 to 4). When you arrive at Part Two of the book, you can go directly to the chapters that are shown in the black column (to the right) marked 'Chapters'.
- The chapter numbers are shown in levels of priority. Begin with the chapter shown first, then move to the next.
- For example, if you scored 3 on the first question (which is the darkest grey area), it is suggested to work with chapter 6 first and then move on to chapter 7.
- Once you have done this, highlight the areas you have scored between 5 and 6, and mark them as level 2. In areas that you scored 7 to 8, mark as level 3.
- Work on your level 1 (priority areas) areas of growth and once you have progressed you can move on to level 2 and 3. You can also choose the areas that are easier to work with as a starting point.

How to Track your Progress:

- The first assessment will provide you with a total score.
- The next step is to practice with the tools from Part Two of the book. After practicing the areas that require strengthening, you can redo the assessment, and obtain a new total score. For your convenience, this assessment is also available on www.sashnee.com. Compare your first score to the new score to see your progress. When you feel you have made progress you can repeat this assessment and see the change in your score.
- The higher the score, the more you are progressing in your self-love journey.
